

Are the effects of COVID-19 increasing water taste complaints?

A survey of water utilities in the USA

It is estimated that around 60% of people with COVID-19 will experience altered taste and smell. Of these, 10% may experience persistent symptoms that can include parosmia - a distorted sense of smell.

People with parosmia may complain that water tastes and/or smells 'off'. To help us better understand the triggers for parosmia, and to see if companies are experiencing any unusual complaints, please take part in our short survey (10-15 minutes).

Link: tinyurl.com/1098m9yj

Further information email:

watersurvey2021@gmail.com

