

Monika Wood graduated from the University of Notre Dame with a BS in Environmental Engineering in 2017, and has been a project engineer with Greeley and Hansen in Alexandria, Virginia since March 2018. As a part of the Project Management/Construction Management team for the Loudoun Water Potomac Water Supply Program, Monika has primarily assisted with project closeout of the new Potomac Raw Water Pumping Station and Trap Rock Water Treatment Facility. Additionally, she has been involved in Inflow/Infiltration studies for the City of Alexandria and the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission.