

Unfortunately, due to a variety of unforeseen circumstances, tonight's CSTA back-to-school event has been postponed until October. But don't worry, all the same fun and excitement will still be in store next month; in fact, we'll have even more built up and ready to distribute! Our apologies for any inconvenience this may have caused. Perhaps the delay will allow us to attract a bigger crowd and share even more!

Once again, thank you for being part of the Sacramento chapter of the Computer Science Teachers Association. It's because of you that we're able to continue to be strong and active advocates for quality CS programs in our region.

In case you haven't yet had time, log in to update/edit your profile, check out our October event, and be sure and register to attend (this helps with planning).

The theme will still be back-to-school, and in that vein, we're asking for all of our members to bring a friend. This could be someone who has an interest in CS, someone from a feeder school, or someone who already teaches CS but isn't part of our membership (...yet).
